Urban Analytics Challenges

Neto M.[1]

[1] Universidade Nova de Lisboa
mneto@novaims.unl.pt

Data is the fuel that powers smart cities development and today urban analytics are the main challenge we face in order to take full advantage of the potential created by the data overload resulting from the sensing capabilities, both from machines and human being, we have. In this presentation we will cover the concepts associated with smart cities, the role of open data and the arising potential of urban radiology.